Canceling the Debt.

At the Methodist Church Sunday morning the ladies turned over to the officers of the church $461, the amount they made on serving dinner at the church fair, and another society of the church turned over $225, a total of $686, to go towards paying off the church debt. Such workers as these ladies will soon cancel the debt.

An Old Prescription.

James A. Stewart, the well known and popular pharmacist at J. B. Wilson's drug store, reports a rather remarkable coincidence. In 1872, Mr. Stewart was with the old drug firm of Ottwell & Wilson, and filled a prescription written by Dr. William Kenney, now deceased and grandfather of Dr. William Kenney, the present coroner of Bourbon. A few days ago a stranger walked into the drug store and presented an empty bottle, the wrapper of which was old with age, asked to have it refilled. Mr. Stewart by referring to the number of the prescription ascertained the fact that it was the original bottle filled thirty-four years ago.

Paris Wins From Lexington.

The Paris baseball team by winning the game Sunday afternoon at Lexington, tied with the Lexington team for the championship of the bluegrass, necessitating the playing of a fourth game. The first game of the present series resulted in a tie, Lexington taking the second and losing the third to their persistent rivals by the score of 6 to 2. The Paris boys were on their mettle, playing the fine points of the game with a vigor and determination born of desperation. McFarland was in fine form, had good control, excellent judgment, and dished out a variety of slow and speedy balls that kept the Lexington batsmen guessing throughout the game. They succeeded in securing only two hits, which were pulled off in the opening inning.

L & N Freight Wreck.

An L. & N. extra freight, composed of engine and three empty stock cars, enroute to Johnson Junction, Saturday, on Maysville Division, jumped the track about three miles South of Carlisle, the engine and cars turning completely over. It was almost a miracle that no one was hurt, the engineer was pinned under his engine, but escaped with slight bruises, as did the fireman, who was thrown a distance of forty feet from the wreck. The engine was backing at the time and it turned crossways of the track before turning over. Passenger trains were compelled to transfer passengers and it was late in the night before trains could pass the wreck.

There was another wreck on the road Saturday night, near Richmond, a freight train running into rear end of another train. An engine, caboose and several cars were smashed up.

Found Suspended From a Limb.

The body of an unidentified but well-dressed negro was found hanging to a tree on the farm of Horace Coleman, nine miles from Lexington, at an early hour Saturday morning. He evidently committed suicide.

No one could identify the negro, but his description tallies with that of Jesse Cox, a negro who shot a policeman recently in Indianapolis, and for whose arrest a reward of $700 had been offered.

Musical Concert.

At the Paris Grand, on Friday, October 26, will be given a select musical concert under the direction of Miss Esther Margolen, the talented violinist of this city. Miss Margolen has during the past few years donated her talent to almost every church, charitable organization, hospital fund benefits, etc., in Paris. It will be merely a recognition of her generosity and kindness for the various organizations to patronize her liberally on next Friday night.

Aside from this feature it will be artistically a treat. Among those who will take part in the concert are Miss Dorothy Barlow, prima donna vocalist; Miss Emma Reaume, elocutionist and impersonator; Miss Marie Fields, mezzo soprano; Miss Esther Margolen, violinist; Miss Sarah Grinnan, accompanist. Each one of these young ladies is an artist in her particular line, and it will be a rare treat to our music loving people. The prices of admission are 35 cents to the balcony and 50 cents to the lower floor. Reserved seats may be secured at Oberdorfer's drug store on and after Wednesday morning.

Raw Eggs May Produce Illness.

According to information communicated to produce men in New York City by the scientific experts of the Department of Agriculture, even the freshest eggs may, under certain conditions, cause illness by communicating some bacterial disease or some parasite.

"It is possible," Secretary Wilson says, "for an egg to become infected with micro-organisms, either before it is laid or after. The shell is porous and offers no great resistance to micro-organisms which cause disease than it does to those which cause the egg to spoil. When the egg is eaten raw the micro-organisms, if present, are communicated to man, and may cause disease."
